

AGCO Hosts AEM's 'Manufacturing Express' with Georgia Governor Brian Kemp

August 23, 2024

Event celebrates AGCO employees, spotlights policies that support US manufacturing.

DULUTH, Ga., Aug. 23, 2024 /PRNewswire/ -- AGCO Corporation (NYSE: AGCO), a global leader in the design, manufacture and distribution of agricultural machinery and precision ag technology, hosted the "Manufacturing Express" of the Association of Equipment Manufacturers (AEM) at its worldwide headquarters in Duluth, Georgia, on August 22, 2024. The event, which included Georgia Governor Brian Kemp, celebrated AGCO's role as the world's largest pure-play manufacturer of agriculture equipment, highlighted the contributions made by its employees in helping farmers feed the world and spotlighted policies that support competitive U.S. manufacturing. AGCO's brands include celebrated equipment providers Fendt® and Massey Ferguson®, as well as one of the industry's newest technology leaders, PTx.

"AGCO is one of Georgia's key corporate citizens, representing the state around the world with some of the most impressive and useful equipment in all of agriculture," said Georgia Governor Brian Kemp. "AGCO and its employees put farmers first every day they go to work, and I'm honored to share this day with them!"

AEM's Manufacturing Express bus tour is traveling 10,000 miles across 20 states with 85 stops at equipment manufacturers to showcase the innovative technologies, processes, people and products revolutionizing this industry across America. The non-partisan event in Duluth featured remarks from Kemp and AGCO Chairman, President & CEO Eric Hansotia, as well as local food, music, games and educational opportunities for employees to learn about manufacturing policies and voter registration services offered by the League of Women Voters.

"The 'Manufacturing Express' celebrates our employees and community while highlighting AGCO's contribution to American manufacturing and the U.S. economy," said Hansotia. "Events like this allow us to pause and thank the thousands of AGCO employees here in Georgia, across the U.S. and around the world for their spirit and the dedication they have for serving our farmers. The support of Governor Kemp certainly capped off an amazing event and we were so proud to welcome him to AGCO's home in Duluth!"
